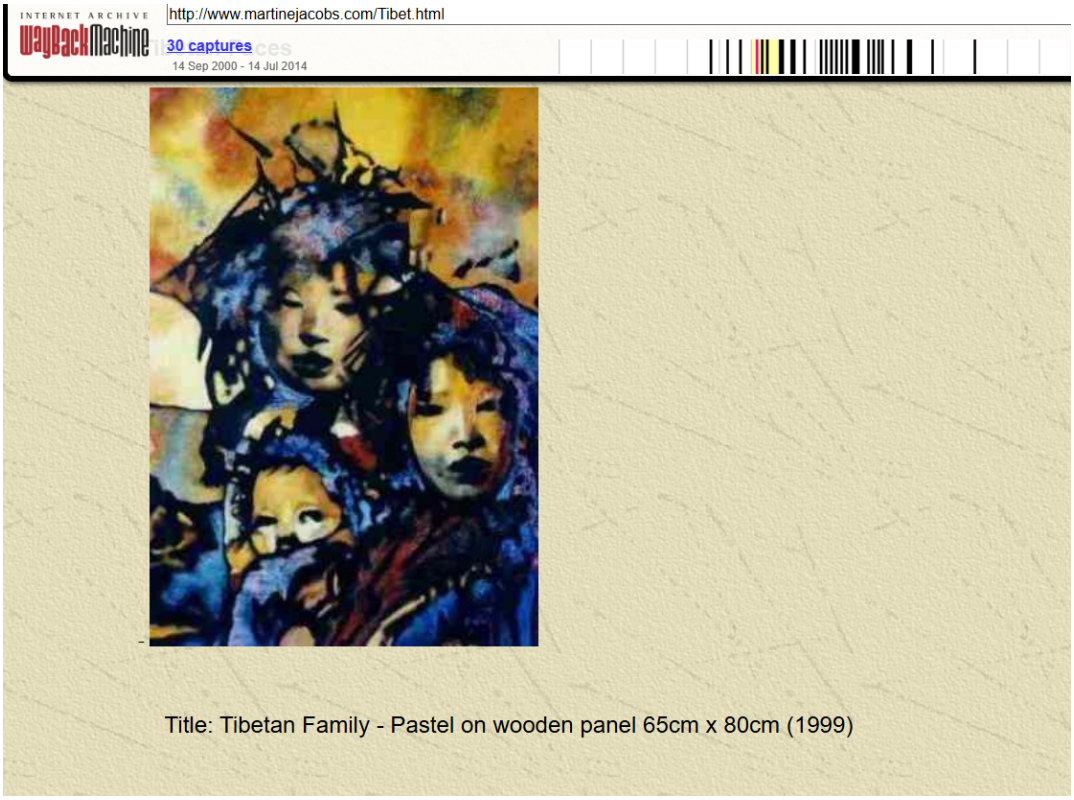
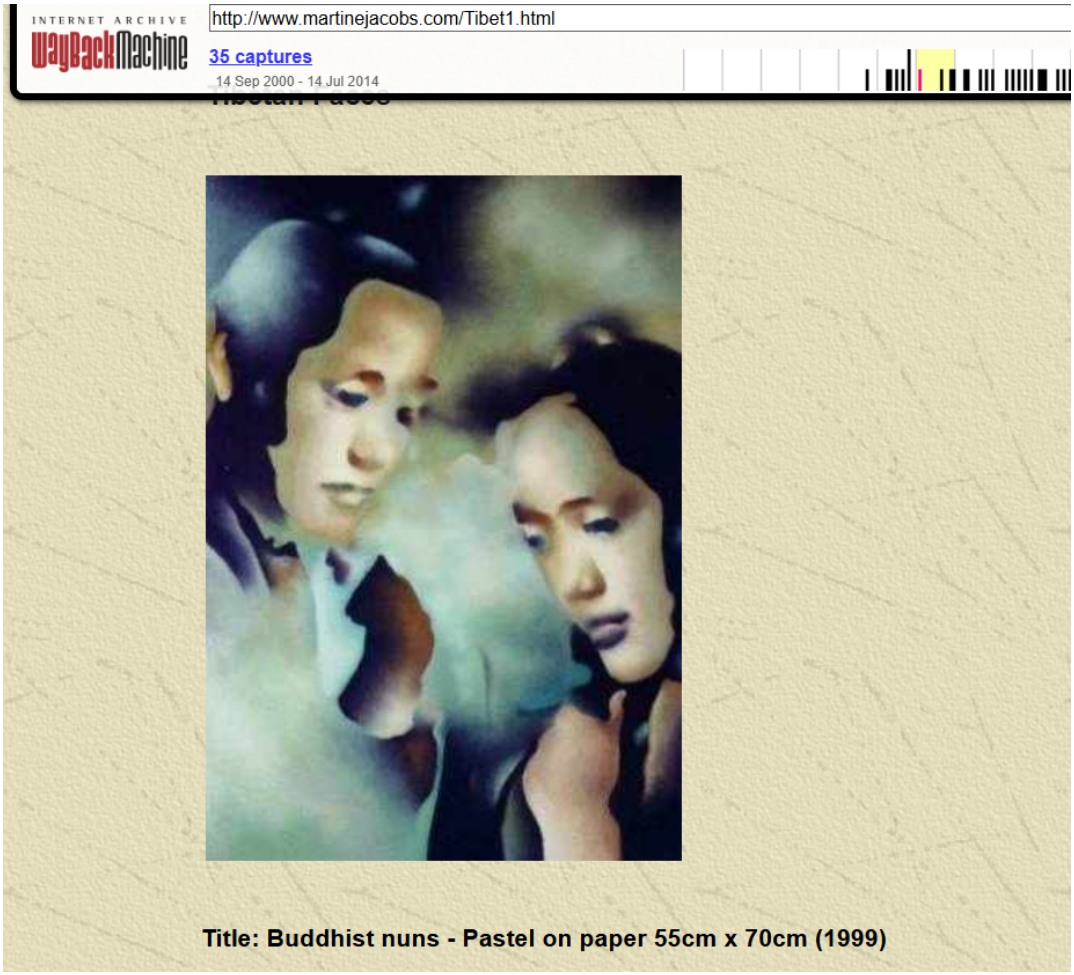
Tibetan Faces and Travels (1979 - 1999)

"My love for the earth is discovered in the truths that lie behind these faces" I'm an adult but see the world through the eyes of a child, in constant wonder and awe with the beauty, the sadness, the intensity, and the power we call Earth (or Life). I have learned in my world travels that you can love any country as much as the country you were born in. I am particularly in love with the Himalayan countries. They inspire me in art and in my thinking. It is a way of life that I now call my own.

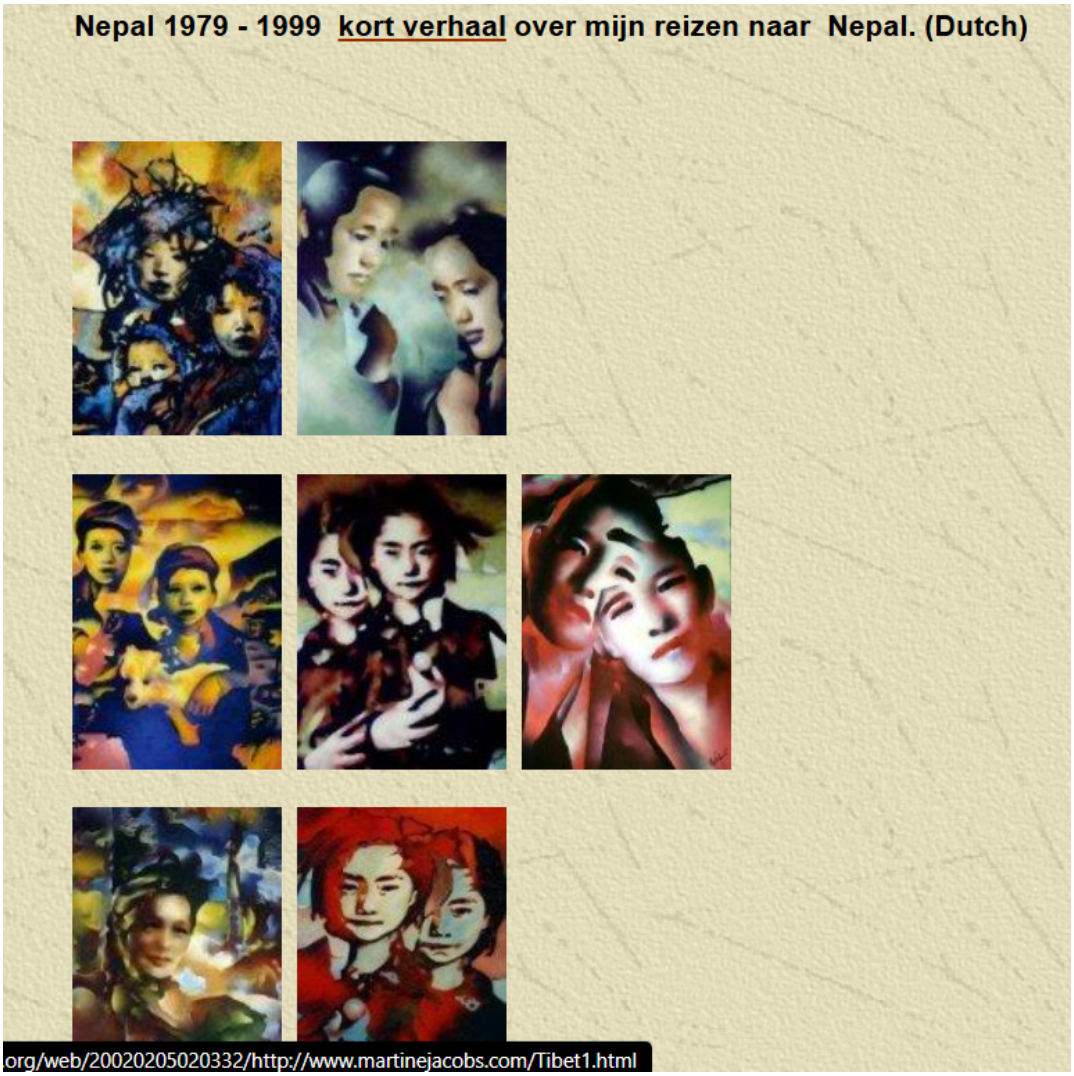


Title: Tibetan Family - Pastel on wooden panel 65cm x 80cm (1999)

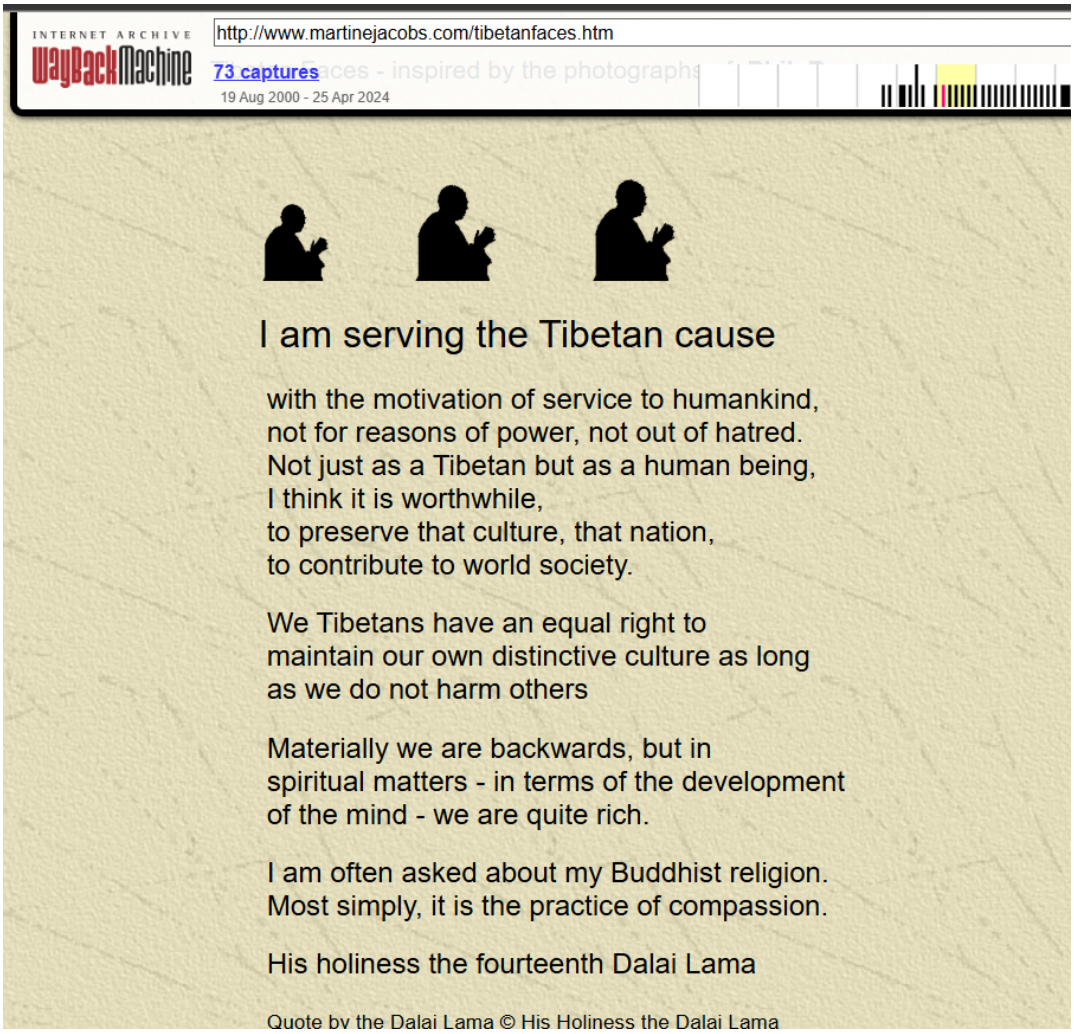


Title: Buddhist Nuns - Pastel on paper 55cm x 70cm (1999)

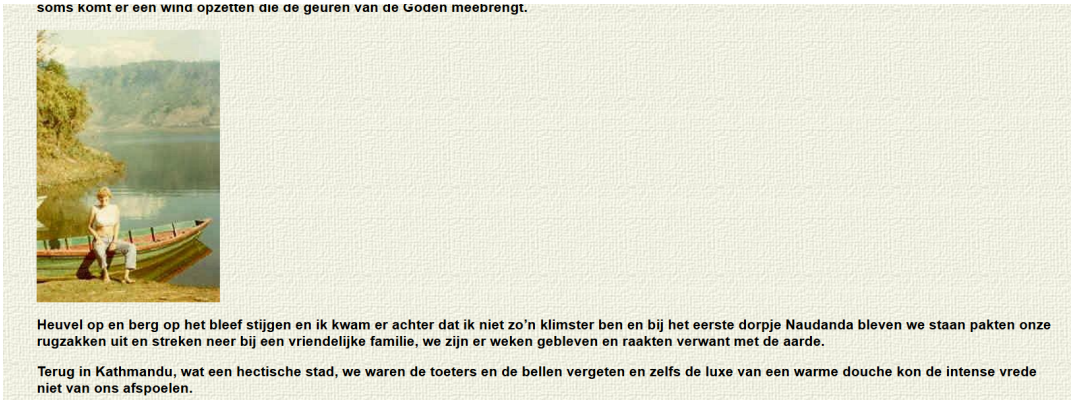
Artwork inspired by Tibetan Faces, late 1990s.



Travels in Nepal 1979-1999



Serving the Tibetan Cause - Quote by the 14th Dalai Lama



Journey through Nepal, trekking and reflections.

"I am serving the Tibetan cause with the motivation of service to humankind, not for reasons of power, not out of hatred. Not just as a Tibetan but as a human being, I think it is worthwhile to preserve that culture, that nation, to contribute to world society. We Tibetans have an equal right to maintain our own distinctive culture as long as we do not harm others. Materially we are backwards, but in spiritual matters - in terms of the development of the mind - we are quite rich. I am often asked about my Buddhist religion. Most simply, it is the practice of compassion." - His Holiness the Fourteenth Dalai Lama